

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE

Several attempts have been made to write the history of the Hierarchy in the Church of the United States. John Gilmary Shea, historian of the American Church, was one of the first to undertake this task. In 1886, he published a volume The Hierarchy of the Catholic Church in the United States, and while this work deserves the highest praise, it is of little historical value, since the author withheld all references to his sources. In 1888, Richard H. Clarke published a similar work in three volumes entitled The Lives of the Deceased Bishops of the Catholic Church in the United States. Unlike Shea, Clarke has given abundant references in his footnotes with the result that he has approached somewhat more closely to the historical ideal. But, despite this, the work is not reliable.

To Francis X. Reuss must be accorded the honor of being the first to undertake a thoroughly historical treatment of this subject. His Biographical Cyclopedia of the Catholic Hierarchy of the United States from 1789 to 1898, published at Milwaukee in 1898, was "nothing more—nor less—than an American supplement to the Art of Verifying Dates. It is not a history in the ordinary meaning of the word: it is a manual of fundamental data for the guidance of future historians of the Church in the United States." The work has many source references and in some instances previous historical inaccuracies are corrected.

In the first issues of the Catholic Historical Review, the Rt. Rev. Owen B. Corrigan, D.D., Auxiliary-Bishop of Baltimore, published a Chronology of the Catholic Hierarchy of the United States, supplementing to a great extent the plan of Reuss. He added the Provinces and the Suffragan Sees in the order of their establishment, following a geographico-chronological division. These articles elicited high commendation and have been exceedingly beneficial to writers in the field of American Church History. But something more is needed, and at the suggestion of Doctor

Peter Guilday, this Manual of the American Hierarchy was written to fill the lacunae. It combines the work of Reuss and Corrigan with an added guide to the known sources of the lives of the Bishops who have ruled the Church in the United States. Under each diocese is given also a brief bibliographical guide.

To bring the work up to date, questionnaires were sent out to the Bishops relative to their biography, as well as to that of their predecessors, and excellent returns were received. For their hearty cooperation, as well as that of the many Diocesan Chancellors, I am duly grateful. To Doctor Peter Guilday, under whose inspiration and guidance this work was undertaken and completed, my gratitude is due. I also take pleasure in acknowledging my indebtedness to the Rev. P. W. Browne, S.T.D., to Mr. Daniel Ryan of the National Catholic Welfare Council, and to Miss Alice McShane of the Library of the Catholic University of America, as well as to my confrères in the American Church History Seminar at the Catholic University of America for helpful suggestions and much-needed assistance.

INTRODUCTION

I. SPANISH ECCLESIASTICAL JURISDICTION

The Spanish colonists came from lands where the Catholic Church had been organized for centuries. As a part of their work of colonization they brought with them the Church system of Spain. As a result bishoprics had been erected from the outset and a hierarchical organization had been effected long before Bishop John Carroll was consecrated.

In a work on the Catholic Hierarchy of the United States from 1790 to 1922 it is necessary to sketch briefly the story of this hierarchy, viewed in the light of early Spanish jurisdiction.

The beginnings of episcopal jurisdiction in the Spanish colonies of America are historically traced to Seville. While in practice the patriarchal honor given to Seville may be of small import, yet this ancient See of the last of the Western Fathers must ever be regarded as the source of Spanish-American canonical discipline.¹

The priests who accompanied Columbus on his second expedition received their faculties from Father Buil, who was appointed Vicar-Apostolic of the New World by Alexander VI. It was not, however, until 1511, that a practical acknowledgment of the rights of Seville as the Metropolitan of the dioceses about to be erected was manifested. In that year on the eighth of August, the first actual sees in the New World were created: at San Domingo, Concepcion de la Vega, and San Juan. The first Bishop to arrive was Alonso Manso and with him the American hierarchy may be said to have begun.²

In 1518, the Diocese of Baracoa in Cuba was erected, but four years later it was superseded by the creation of the See of Santiago de Cuba and it was to this Diocese that our first parish, St. Augustine, organized in 1565, belonged.

² Pope Julius II erected the Province of Hyaguata, with Magua and Bayuana, as suffragan sees in 1504, but they never existed except on paper. Their creation on account of the proximity to the mainland, is the foreshadowing of the hierarchy under which we now live.

The Church in Spanish-America was made independent of the Metropolitan See of Seville in 1545, when the archiepiscopal Sees of Lima, Mexico City, and San Domingo were erected. We are only concerned with the last two, for it is from these Provinces that ecclesiastical jurisdiction and organization in the southeastern and southwestern parts of the United States can be traced.

In the southeastern part of our country, the parish of St. Augustine, was subject ecclesiastically to the Diocese of Santiago de Cuba, which See was at first a Suffragan of the Province of San Domingo. During the next century and a half, subsequent to 1565, Florida received canonical visitations from the Bishops of Santiago and their representatives. As a result, the Holy See instructed the Bishop of Santiago to select an Auxiliary, who was to serve as his representative in Florida. Accordingly, Dionisio Rezino was consecrated in Yucatan in 1709 as titular Bishop of Adramyttium. From 1710 to 1763, Florida received episcopal supervision from the Auxiliary-Bishops of Santiago and in 1762 from the Ordinary of Santiago himself. By the Treaty of Paris in 1763, Spain ceded Florida to England in return for Manila and Havana and the subsequent years until 1783 were disastrous to the Church in that region. In 1783, Florida—then under the jurisdiction of the Diocese of Havana, erected in 1787—was restored to Spain and remained under her control until 1819, when the territory was purchased by the United States. Thenceforward, Bishop DuBourg of New Orleans, assumed control, notwithstanding the protests of the Bishop of Havana, who maintained that he had not been notified of the change by the Patriarch of the Indies. The question of jurisdiction was finally settled on November 5, 1826, when Bishop Portier became resident Vicar-Apostolic of the Vicariate of Alabama and the Floridas.

In the southwestern part of our country the Church was subject to Mexican Sees and in particular to the Archdiocese of Mexico City, which had been erected in 1545. As a Suffragan of this Province, the See of Guadalajara (erected in 1560) is of prime import, for our southwest enters on the stage of Church history as part of this diocese.*

The jurisdiction of the Bishop of Guadalajara over the future southwest of the United States was transferred to the Bishop of Durango upon the erection of the latter Diocese in 1620. The next ecclesiastical division came in 1777, when the Diocese of Linares was erected, and two years later the See of Sonora was established. These changes, therefore, bring us closer to the origin and development of the present Dioceses in the States of New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, and California. In brief, the Vicariate-Apostolic of New Mexico (which included Arizona), erected in 1850 by Pius IX, with the Rt. Rev. John Lamy as first Vicar, belonged ecclesiastically to the Diocese of Durango. To the Bishop of the See of Linares was given the jurisdiction over the present State of Texas from 1777 until it was created a Prefecture-Apostolic in 1838 under the administration of the Rev. John Timon, C.M.† The Diocese of Monterey (erected in 1850) was formerly part of the Diocese of Both Californias (1840) which in turn was subject to the Bishop of Sonora (1779). In 1851, when Lower California was severed from the jurisdiction of Bishop Alemany of Monterey, the last link with the Spanish-American hierarchy was broken.

II. FRENCH ECCLESIASTICAL JURISDICTION

The Archbishop of Rouen was the first to exercise jurisdiction over the country that was called New France, which at that time included the great central valley of the United States. Consequently in 1647, he appointed Father Jerome Lalemant, as Superior of the Missions in Canada. Notwithstanding the protests of the Archbishop, the Holy See thought it necessary to erect a Vicariate-Apostolic in Canada in order that more personal supervision could be exercised over the growing Church in this continent.

* RYAN, Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction in the Spanish Colonies, in the Catholic Historical Review, Vol. v. p. 5.

† Erected as a Vicariate-Apostolic in 1841, with the Rt. Rev. John M. Odín, D. D., as first Vicar-Apostolic.

Accordingly, on June 3, 1658, the Vicariate of Canada was established and the Rt. Rev. Francis Montmorency de Laval, was appointed as first Vicar-Apostolic; as a result the immediate jurisdiction of the Archbishop of Rouen ceased.

The territory of the new Vicar-Apostolic was quite extensive. With the exception of the Thirteen Original Colonies and the territory in the southeastern and the southwestern parts of our country, which were under Spanish jurisdiction, Bishop Laval was spiritual administrator over the remaining part of the United States and all of Canada. For our purpose, it suffices to state that he administered this territory by appointing vicars-general with ample powers as his representatives in the Illinois country and in the Mississippi Valley region of Louisiana. In the east and northeast, he exercised personal jurisdiction with the various Jesuit Fathers acting as Superiors.

By way of anticipation, it may be stated that the Far West, the Oregon Territory, remained under the jurisdiction of the Bishops of Quebec until 1822, when the Vicariate-Apostolic of Red River was erected with Bishop Provencher as Vicar Apostolic.* It was he who received the first appeal from the settlers in the Oregon Country in 1834 to send priests to that territory to care for their spiritual wants.†

In 1722, Louisiana was divided into three great ecclesiastical districts. The first section extending from the mouth of the Mississippi River to that of the Illinois, was assigned to the Capuchins; the second, which was north of the Wabash River (Illinois Country), was given to the Jesuits; while the third, the country east of the Mississippi from the sea (Gulf of Mexico) to the Wabash, was allotted to the Carmelites. The Superior of these respective Religious Orders was to be the Vicar-General of the Bishop of Quebec. During the subsequent years, considerable trouble arose among the Superiors as to the question of

* The Diocese of Quebec was erected in 1674.

† Bishop Provencher had no priests to spare, so the appeal was transmitted to the Bishop of Quebec. In response to this, Fathers Francis Norbert Blanchet and Modeste Demers were sent to this region in 1838, the former being appointed Vicar-General.

jurisdiction. Shortly after the Carmelites retired, and their territory was turned over to the Capuchins.'

By the Treaty of Paris in 1763, Louisiana became a province of Spain and ecclesiastical jurisdiction over this territory¹ was withdrawn from the Bishop of Quebec and given to the Ordinary of the Diocese of Santiago de Cuba. In 1789 this diocese was divided; the new bishopric of St. Christopher of Havana was erected, and the Rt. Rev. Cyril de Barcelona, Auxiliary-Bishop of Havana, became resident Ordinary over the Louisiana part of the diocese. The next ecclesiastical change occurred in April, 1793, when Pius VI made Louisiana an independent see with the Rt. Rev. Louis Peñalver y Cardenas as first Bishop. In 1800 Spain retroceded Louisiana to France, and it was later (1803) purchased by the United States. On September 1, 1805, the Congregation of Propaganda issued a decree to the effect that Bishop Carroll was appointed Apostolic-Administrator of Louisiana with power to appoint a resident Vicar-General. The upper part of the Mississippi Valley remained under the control of the Bishop of Quebec, with resident Vicars-General as their representatives until the Very Rev. John Carroll was appointed Prefect-Apostolic of the Church in the New Republic.'

III. ENGLISH JURISDICTION OVER THE THIRTEEN COLONIES

The Church in the English Colonies was almost exclusively an English Jesuit Mission and the Superior acted as the representative of the Vicar-Apostolic of London. Whether or not these Vicars had the power to grant the Superiors faculties prior to 1757 is a debated question. But in that year the Sacred Congregation of Propaganda granted to Bishop Petre, Vicar-Apostolic of the London District, full jurisdiction over the islands and colonies. When Bishop Challoner became Vicar-Apostolic he received the same power on March 31, 1759, and he exercised this up to the time of his death in 1781. The Jesuit Superior acted as his Vicar-General in the American Colonies.'

³ BURTON, Life and Times of Bishop Challoner. Vol. II, p. 123 seq. London, 1909.

Both Bishop Petre and his successor, Bishop Challoner, petitioned the Holy See to erect a Vicariate Apostolic in English America for the government of the Church in the islands and on the mainland, but their efforts were of no avail.

When the Revolutionary War broke out, ecclesiastical relations between Bishop Challoner and the Church in the Colonies came to an end. The Church in the future Republic was not, however, without its head, for the acting Vicar-General, Father John Lewis, continued to be acknowledged by the clergy and laity alike as their Superior. But after the Treaty of Paris in 1783, it was recognized that it would be impossible for the Vicar-Apostolic of London to exercise jurisdiction over the Church in the New Republic, and accordingly, a General Chapter of the American clergy was called at Whitemarsh.

After the first meeting on November 6, 1783, the name of Father John Lewis was sent to Rome as Superior of the whole Mission. He remained as the acknowledged leader until June 9, 1784, when the Holy See appointed John Carroll Prefect-Apostolic of the Church in the New Republic." Thus officially ended the jurisdiction of the Vicar-Apostolic of London over the nascent Church in this country. Father Carroll acted as Prefect-Apostolic during the subsequent five years, and on November 14, 1789, he was appointed first Bishop of the newly created Diocese of Baltimore, thereby becoming the first Bishop of the present Hierarchy of the United States.

CHAPTER I

I. THE PROVINCE OF BALTIMORE (1808)

The Metropolitan See of Baltimore was erected by Pius VII on April 8, 1808, with the Right Reverend John Carroll, D.D., as first Archbishop.

When created, the Archdiocese had as suffragan sees the Dioceses of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and Bardstow, and the jurisdiction of the Archbishop in 1808 extended over Maryland, Virginia, the District of Columbia, the two Carolinas, and over what is now Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida. Three years later some islands in the Danish and Dutch West Indies were added to this already extensive jurisdiction. At present the Province of Baltimore has as suffragan sees, the Dioceses of Richmond (1820), Charleston (1820), Savannah (1850), Wilmington, Delaware (1868), Saint Augustine (1870), and the Vicariate-Apostolic of North Carolina (1868).

I. Diocese of Baltimore (1789)

The original Diocese of Baltimore, the first to be erected in the United States, was created on November 6, 1789, when Pius VI appointed the Reverend John Carroll to the new See as its first Bishop.

The original thirteen colonies were the geographical limits of this diocese in 1789, but throughout the course of the years it has been gradually reduced, so that it now comprises all the counties of Maryland, lying west of Chesapeake Bay, and the District of Columbia with a total area of 6,463 square miles.

1. CARROLL, JOHN.

The first Bishop of the Hierarchy of the United States was born at Upper Marlboro, Maryland, on January 3, 1735. At the age of twelve he went to the Bohemia Manor School, and after a year there he was sent to College of Saint Omer's in France, where he made his classical studies. In 1753, he entered the Society of Jesus, and two years later, at Liège, began his studies in philosophy and theology. Ordained to the priesthood in 1769, he spent the next five years in teaching and in traveling. When the Society of Jesus was suppressed in 1773, he was ordered to return to Maryland, where his mother was living. During the next decade (1779-1789), he served as a missionary to the scattered Catholics of Maryland and Virginia. In 1776 he went to Canada with the three American commissioners, Charles Carroll of Carrollton, his cousin, Benjamin Franklin, and Samuel Chase. He was appointed Prefect-Apostolic of the Church in the United States on June 9, 1784, and five years later, on November 6, 1789, he was appointed first Bishop of Baltimore. He was consecrated in Lulworth Castle, England, on August 15, 1790, by the Rt. Rev. Charles Walmesley, senior Vicar-Apostolic of England. He was elevated to the archiepiscopate on April 8, 1808, and received the pallium on August 18, 1811. Mourned by all classes, he died on December 3, 1815, in Baltimore, Maryland.

ARCHIVAL MATERIAL: There are twenty cases of Letters and Correspondence Private and Administrative, in the Baltimore Archives. Many of these letters are rough sketches and copies of letters sent to Rome and elsewhere, and they have been admirably used by Shea in the second volume of his History of the Catholic Church in the United States. Shea procured copies of most of the Carroll correspondence from Rome and elsewhere and these Shea Transcripts are now in the Georgetown Archives, at the University of Georgetown.

Both the Baltimore Archives and the Georgetown Archives are card-catalogued. The Dominican Archives at the Dominican House of Studies, Catholic University of America, Washington, D. 2. NEALE, LEONARD.

Archbishop Neale was born at Port Tobacco, Charles County, Maryland, on October 15, 1746. His early instruction was received at home and at the age of twelve he was sent to the College of Saint Omer in France. He entered the Society of Jesus, and after completing his studies was ordained to the priesthood at Liège, Belgium, on June 5, 1773. In 1779, he set sail for British Guiana to engage in missionary work. His attempts meeting with little success, on account of ill-health he returned to Maryland in January, 1783. Bishop Carroll appointed him Vicar-General for the northern district of the Diocese and in 1798, he became President of Georgetown College. The following year he was appointed coadjutor to Archbishop Carroll with the title of titular Bishop of Gortyna. He was consecrated by Bishop Carroll on December 7, 1800, and succeeded to the Archiepiscopal See of Baltimore on December 5, 1815. His death occurred at the Visitation Convent, Georgetown, D. C., on June 18, 1817.¹

E. MARECHAL, AMBROSE.

Archbishop Maréchal was born at Ingres, Loiret, France, on August 28, 1764. His parents had destined him for the legal profession, but young Marechal chose an ecclesiastical career. During the turmoil of the French Revolution he entered the Sulpician Seminary at Orleans. After completing his studies, he was ordained to the priesthood at Bordeaux early in 1792. On the same day he embarked for the United States and arrived at Baltimore on June 24, and said his first Mass in that city. He labored as a missionary in Maryland, and in 1799 was appointed professor of Dogmatic Theology at St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore. He was appointed coadjutor to Archbishop Neale on July 24, 1817, and was consecrated at Baltimore

¹ The Rev. Lawrence Graessel was appointed coadjutor to Bishop Carroll in 1798, but he died before being consecrated.

4. WHITFIELD, JAMES.

The fourth Archbishop of Baltimore was born at Liverpool, England, on November 3, 1770, of well-to-do parents. He received a liberal education and made good use of his opportunities. While touring Europe with his mother, he met the Rev. Ambrose Maréchal at Lyons, France, and from this meeting was formed a lasting acquaintance. Due to this influence, Whitfield entered the theological seminary at Lyons, and on the completion of his course of studies, was ordained to the priesthood on July 14, 1809. At the request of Archbishop Maréchal he came to the United States in September, 1817, and shortly afterward was appointed one of the assistants at St. Peter's Church, Baltimore. He was appointed coadjutor to Maréchal on January 8, 1828, but the Bulls did not arrive until after the archbishop's death. Bishop Flaget consecrated him on March 25, 1828. He died in Baltimore on October 19, 1834.

5. ECCLESTON, SAMUEL.

Archbishop Eccleston, was born of non-Catholic parents a few miles from Chestertown, Kent County, Maryland, on June 27, 1801. He received his early education as an Episcopalian, but when his mother married a Catholic, after the decease of the Archbishop's father, young Eccles-ton was sent to Saint Mary's College, Baltimore, where he became a convert to the Faith. He entered the seminary adjoining the college on May 23, 1819, and six years later on April 24, 1825, he was ordained to the priesthood by Archbishop Maréchal. A few months afterward he was sent to France and there entered the Sulpician Seminary near Paris. Upon the completion of his probation, he returned to the United States in July, 1827, and was appointed Vice-President of Saint Mary's College, and two years later became President of that institution. In the summer of 1834, he was appointed coadjutor to Archbishop Whitfield and was consecrated titular Bishop of Thermias on September 14, of that year. He succeeded to the See of Baltimore on October 19, 1834, and died at Georgetown in the Visitation Convent on April 22, 1851.

9. GIBBONS, JAMES, CARDINAL.

This distinguished churchman, and at the time of his death one of America's foremost citizens, was born in Baltimore on July 23, 1834. At the age of seven, he went with his parents to Ireland. He returned to the United States in 1847, and in 1855 he entered Saint Charles College to study for the priesthood. After completing his course at this institution, he entered Saint Mary's Seminary, and was ordained to the priesthood by Archbishop Kenrick on June 30, 1861. In October, 1865, Archbishop Spalding made him his secretary. At the age of thirty-two he was appointed Vicar-Apostolic of North Carolina and titular Bishop of Adramyttium and was consecrated by Archbishop Spalding in the Cathedral at Baltimore on August 16, 1868. At the Vatican Council in 1869 he was the youngest of the seven hundred and sixty-seven Bishops present. Three years later on July 30, 1872, he was transferred to the See of Richmond and was installed by Archbishop Bayley of Baltimore on October 20 of that year. When Archbishop Bayley petitioned Rome for a coadjutor, Bishop Gibbons was selected for the office with the title of Bishop of Gionopolis on May 25, 1877. On the death of Archbishop Bayley he succeeded to the See of Baltimore as the ninth incumbent on October 3, 1877. He was notified of his promotion to the Cardinalate on February 10, 1886, and he was invested with the robes of office on June 30, 1886, in the historic Baltimore Cathedral. He died in Baltimore on March 24, 1921.

2. KAIN, JOHN J.

Consecrated as second Bishop of Wheeling May 21, 1875. He was promoted to the archiepiscopal See of St. Louis May 21, 1893.

(Cf. St. Louis.)

3. DONAHUE, PATRICK.

The present Bishop of Wheeling was born at Malvern, England, April 15, 1849 and came to the United States after receiving his education at the University of London. He engaged in the practice of law in Washington, D. C., until 1882, when he began studying for the priesthood. He was ordained to the priesthood in Baltimore on December 23, 1885. At the time of his appointment to the See of Wheeling on January 22, 1894, he was acting as Rector of the Cathedral in Baltimore, and was consecrated as Bishop by the late Cardinal Gibbons on April 8, 1894.

The Right Reverend J. J. Swint, D.D., was appointed auxiliary to Bishop Donahue, according to a cable dispatch of February 22, 1922. He was born at Pickens, West Virginia, December 15, 1879, and received his seminary training at Saint Mary's, Baltimore. He was ordained to the priesthood on June 23, 1904, and was consecrated on May 11, 1922, by Archbishop Curley of Baltimore.

V. Diocese of Savannah (1850)

Upon the recommendation of the Fathers of the Seventh Provincial Council of Baltimore, Pius IX created the Diocese of Savannah on July 19, 1850. The Right Rev. Francis X. Gartland, was consecrated as its first Bishop on November 10, 1850.

When first erected, the Diocese of Savannah comprised the State of Georgia and the eastern part of Florida. In 1857 Eastern Florida was detached, and the See of Savannah was given its present territorial limits of the State of Georgia; an area of 58,980 square miles.

He was ordained to the priesthood on June 9, 1895, and soon after he came to the Diocese of St. Augustine. He was acting as Vicar-General of this Diocese when appointed as successor to Archbishop Curley. He was consecrated by his predecessor on May 3, 1922.

VIII. Vicariate of North Carolina (1868)

On March 3, 1868 the Holy See erected the Vicariate of North Carolina, to comprise the State of that name. The late Cardinal Gibbons was consecrated titular Bishop of Adramyttium and named its first Vicar-Apostolic on August 16, 1868. Pius X, on June 8, 1910, erected eight counties of North Carolina into the Abbacy Nullius of Belmont and decreed that the Abbot of this place should exercise administrative powers over the Vicariate Apostolic of North Carolina until it was erected into a Diocese.

Until 1910 the Vicariate comprised the State of North Carolina. At that time the Abbey of Belmont was erected and eight counties were absconded. At present the Vicariate of North Carolina and Belmont Abbey comprises the entire State, excepting the Counties of Gaston, Lincoln, Cleveland, Polk, Rutherford, McDowell, Burke and Catawba, which by a Bull of His Holiness, Pius X dated June 8, 1910, constitute the diocesan territory of the Abbacy Nullius of Belmont. The total area is 48,580 square miles.

(Cf. Charleston.)

3. HAID, LEO.

The present Vicar-Apostolic was born at Latrobe, Pennsylvania, on July 15, 1849, and joined the Benedictine Order in 1869, and received his training at Saint Vincent's Abbey at Beatty, Pennsylvania. He was ordained to the priesthood on December 21, 1872, and then served as chaplain and professor at his Alma Mater. He received the solemn rite of benediction as Mitred Abbot of Belmont Abbey on November 26, 1885. Appointed Vicar-Apostolic of North Carolina on July 15, 1887, he was consecrated by Cardinal Gibbons titular Bishop of Messene on July 1, 1888. He was made Abbot Ordinary of the Abbacy Nullius of Belmont in 1910.

CHAPTER II

THE PROVINCE OF OREGON CITY (1846)

The Archiepiscopal See of Oregon City was erected on July 24, 1846, with the Right Reverend Francis N. Blanchet as first Archbishop.

When created, the Province of Oregon City included part of Canada and had as suffragan sees, the Dioceses of Nesqually, Walla-Walla, Fort Hall, Calville, Vancouver, Princess, Charlotte's Island and New Caledonia. For some unknown reason, Bishops were only appointed to the Sees of Oregon City, Walla-Walla and Vancouver Island. At present the Province is confined to the States of Oregon, Montana, Washington, Idaho and Alaska, and has as suffragan sees the Dioceses of Helena (1884), Boise City (1903), Baker City (1903), Great Falls (1904), Seattle (1907), and Spokane (1903). Also the Vicariate-Apostolic of Alaska (1916).

I. Diocese of Oregon City (1843)

By a Brief of December, 1843, the Sovereign Pontiff created the Vicariate-Apostolic of Oregon, and the Very Reverend Francis N. Blanchet, was appointed titular Bishop of Philadelphia and Vicar-Apostolic. He was consecrated on July 25, 1845. The Archiepiscopal See was created out of the Vicariate-Apostolic of Oregon.

The Vicariate-Apostolic of Oregon embraced all the territory between the Mexican Province of California at the south, and the Russian Province of Alaska on the north and extended from the Pacific Ocean to the Rocky Mountains. At present, the Diocese of Oregon City comprises the territory in the western part of the State of Oregon with an area of 21,398 square miles.

1. BLANCHET, FRANCIS N.

The first Archbishop of Oregon City, was born near Saint Pierre, Rivière du Sud, Province of Quebec, September 30, 1795. He received his early education in the village school and later entered the Seminary of Quebec, where he was ordained to the priesthood on July 18, 1819. After his ordination he was stationed at the Cathedral in Montreal for a year and was then sent to New Brunswick as a missionary. In 1837 he was chosen Vicar-General of the Oregon Mission by Archbishop Signay. Appointed first Vicar-Apostolic of the Oregon Territory, he went to Montreal for his consecration, which took place on July 25, 1845 with Bishop Bourget as consecrating prelate. When the Vicariate was erected into a Province he became its first Archbishop on July 24, 1846. He signed the See in 1880 and was appointed titular Archbishop of Amida, and died in Portland on June 18, 1883.

I. Diocese of Saint Louis (1826)

The Diocese of Saint Louis was erected on July 2, 1826, and the Rt. Rev. Joseph Rosati was appointed first Bishop on March 20, 1827.

The Diocese covered an immense area when created, including not only the Territory of Arkansas, the State of Missouri and the western part of Illinois, but also all the region of the Louisiana Purchase which extended along the Mississippi River to the northern boundary of the United States and westward to the Pacific Ocean. At present the Diocese of Saint Louis comprises that section of the State of Missouri bounded on the north by the northern lines of the counties Pike, Audrain, Boone and Howard; on the west by the western lines of the counties Howard, Boone, Cole, Maries, Pulaski, Texas and Howell; on the south by the State of Arkansas; and on the east by the Mississippi River; an area of 27,092 square miles.

1. ROSATI, JOSEPH.

The first Bishop of Saint Louis was born at Sora, Naples, Italy, on January 12, 1789, and in his youth he entered the novitiate of the Congregation of the Mission. He was probably ordained in 1811 or 1812 and his first work as a priest was assistant to the Rev. Felix de Andreis C. M., in Rome. He readily consented to come to the American mission and when the group of missionaries departed for the United States Father Rosati was appointed Director of the seminarians in the party. The zealous band reached Bardstown, Kentucky, in October, 1817, and Father Rosati remained at that place as Rector of the seminary until the following year, when he was transferred to the Barrens, Perry County, Saint Louis, as Superior of the seminary there. Bishop DuBourg consecrated him titular Bishop of Tenagre and Coadjutor of New Orleans at Donaldsville, Louisiana, on March 25, 1824. Two years later he was designated Bishop of New Orleans, but refused the appointment. He was translated to Saint Louis as first Bishop of this historic see on March 20, 1827, also serving at the same time as Administrator of New Orleans. He died in Rome at the House of the Fathers of the Congregation of the Mission on September 25, 1843.

Bishop Rosati wrote the Life of the Very Rev. Felix DeAndreis, which was published at St. Louis in 1900.

2. KENRICK, PETER RICHARD.

The first Archbishop of Saint Louis was born in Dublin, Ireland, on August 17, 1806. He received his early education in the schools of his native country and at the age of twenty-one he entered Maynooth. After five years of assiduous work at this institution he was ordained to the priesthood on March 6, 1832, by Archbishop Murray of Dublin. At the invitation of his brother in Philadelphia, he came to the United States and while in Pennsylvania he held the positions of President of the Diocesan Seminary in Philadelphia; Rector of the Cathedral and Vicar-General of the Diocese. His consecration as titular Bishop of Drasa and coadjutor of Saint Louis took place in Philadelphia on November 30, 1841, with Bishop Rosati as consecrating prelate. He succeeded to the See of Saint Louis on September 25, 1843, and was made first archbishop on July 20, 1847. After a most successful administration he retired on May 21, 1859, in favor of his coadjutor and was proclaimed titular Archbishop of Marcanopolis. He died at the archiepiscopal residence in Saint Louis, on March 3, 1896.

He was designated Bishop of Concordia on February 22, 1921, and was consecrated by Bishop Lillis of Kansas City on March 30, 1921.

CHAPTER IV

PROVINCE OF NEW ORLEANS (1850)

The Archiepiscopal See of New Orleans was erected on July 19, 1850, with the Rt. Rev. Anthony Blanc as first Archbishop.

The Province, when erected, had as suffragan sees, the Dioceses of Mobile (1829), Natchez (1837), Little Rock (1843), and Galveston (1847), embracing the States of Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas and Texas. At present its territorial limits extend to these same States, but the Dioceses of Alexandria (1910), San Antonio (1847), Corpus Christi (1912), Dallas (1890), Oklahoma (1905), and Lafayette (1918), have been added to the original number of suffragan sees.

I. Diocese of New Orleans (1826)

On July 18, 1826, Pope Leo XII, divided the Diocese of Louisiana and erected the Dioceses of New Orleans and Saint Louis. Until the consecration of the Rt. Rev. Leo de Neckere, C. M., as first resident Bishop of New Orleans on May 24, 1830, the administration of the Diocese of New Orleans was left to Bishop Rosati of Saint Louis.¹

As erected in 1826, the Diocese of New Orleans comprised the States of Louisiana and Mississippi. At present the Diocese comprises the territory in the southern part of the State of Louisiana, with an area of 23,208 square miles.

1. PENALVER Y CARDENAS, LOUIS.

The first Bishop of Louisiana was born on April 3, 1749; ordained to the priesthood at Havana on April 14, 1772; appointed Bishop of Louisiana, and the Floridas on April 25, 1793, and was consecrated Bishop in the same year. He was promoted to the Archiepiscopal See of Guatemala on July 20, 1801, and died in Havana on July 17, 1810. A Franciscan, the Rt. Rev. Francis Porro y Penado, was nominated and appointed as successor to Bishop Penalver. It is certain that he never took possession of the see, although it is a disputed matter whether or not he was consecrated as Bishop.

2. DUBOURG, WILLIAM.

The third Bishop of Louisiana was born in San Domingo on February 14, 1766, and made his theological studies in Paris where he was ordained to the priesthood in 1788. After his ordination, he joined the Sulpicians and in 1794 emigrated to the United States. From 1796 to 1799 he was president of Georgetown College and on August 18, 1812, he was chosen Apostolic-Administrator of the Diocese of Louisiana and the Floridas, and was consecrated Bishop of that See in the Eternal City on September 24, ¹ On April 25, 1793, the Holy See erected the Diocese of Louisiana the Floridas, and on July 17, 1798, the Rt. Rev. Louis Penalver y Cardenas, appointed first Bishop, arrived in New Orleans. He left in 1801, and then the Diocese was administered by the Vicar-General of Bishop Carroll. Later, on September 24, 1815, Rev. William Du Bourg was consecrated as Bishop of Louisiana, and he administered this Diocese until it was divided and the Dioceses of New Orleans and Saint Louis created.

1815, by Cardinal Joseph Doria Pamfilo, Bishop of Poro. He resigned his episcopal charge in November, 1826, and was translated to the Bishopric of Montauban, France, on August 13, 1826. On February 15, 1833, he was promoted to the Archiepiscopal See of Bensancon. He died on December 12, 1833.

3. DENECKERE, LEO RAYMOND, C. M.

Strictly speaking, the Rt. Rev. Leo DeNeckere was the first Bishop of New Orleans. He was born at Wevelghem, Belgium, on June 6, 1800, and while a seminarian in the city of Ghent, he was accepted by Bishop DuBourg for the Diocese of Louisiana. Coming to this country he joined the Lazarists and was ordained to the priesthood in St. Louis on October 30, 1822. While visiting Europe in 1827 he was summoned to Rome, where he was appointed Bishop of New Orleans, on August 4, 1829, and upon his return to that city was consecrated on May 24, 1830, by Bishop Rosati. He died in New Orleans on September 4, 1833.

4. BLANC, ANTHONY.

The first Archbishop of New Orleans was born on October 11, 1792, at Sury le Comtal, near Lyons, France. He was one of the first ecclesiastical students to enter the seminaries of France after the Restoration and was ordained to the priesthood on July 22, 1816, in the Seminary at Lyons. He came to the United States in September, 1817, with several young seminarians and shortly afterwards went south to labor in Mississippi. In 1831 he became Vicar-General of Bishop DeNeckere and after the Bishop's death he acted as Diocesan Administrator until appointed as his successor. Bishop Rosati consecrated him Bishop on November 22, 1835. He was created archbishop on July 19, 1850, and received the pallium on February 16, 1851. He died somewhat suddenly in New Orleans on June 20, 1860.

5. ODIN, J. M., C.M.

Bishop Odin was promoted to the Archiepiscopal See of New Orleans from the Diocese of Galveston on February 15, 1861. He was born at Hauteville, Ambierle, France, on February 25, 1801. While a seminarian in his native country he responded to the call of Bishop DuBourg for missionaries and came to the United States in June, 1822. He was sent to the Lazarist Seminary near St. Louis to complete his theological studies and was ordained to the priesthood on May 4, 1824. His early career as a priest was spent in and around Missouri and Arkansas, and in 1840 he was sent to Texas by his superiors as Vice-Prefect. Archbishop Blanc consecrated him titular Bishop of Claudopolis and Vicar-Apostolic of Texas on March 6, 1842. He was appointed first Bishop of Galveston on April 23, 1847. While touring Europe, his health failed and he sought relief at his native home in Ambierle, France, where he died on May 25, 1870.

6. PERCHE, NAPOLEON J.

The second Archbishop of New Orleans was born in Angers, France, on January 30, 1805. He completed his studies at the Seminary of Beaupré and was ordained to the priesthood on September 19, 1829. He came to the United States with Bishop Flaget in 1837, and was appointed pastor at Portland, and four years later he went to New Orleans with Archbishop Blanc. Appointed coadjutor to Archbishop Odin, he was consecrated on May 1, 1870, by Bishop Rosecrans, of Columbus. He succeeded to the Archiepiscopal See of New Orleans on May 25, 1870, and a year later he received the pallium from the hands of Pius IX. He died in New Orleans on December 27, 1883.

7. LERAY, FRANCIS X.

Archbishop Leray was born at Chateau Giron, Brittany, France, and received his early education in the schools of that town. He made his classical course at the College of Rennes and then came to the United States in 1843. He was ordained to the priesthood at Natchez after the completion of his theology at St. Mary's, Baltimore. During the Civil War he acted as Chaplain for the Confederate Army of Tennessee, and afterwards was appointed Vicar-General by Bishop Elder for the Diocese of Natchez. When the See of Natchitoches became vacant at the death of Bishop Martin, Father Leray was appointed to fill the vacancy and was consecrated bishop at Rennes, France, on April 22, 1877, by Cardinal Mark, Archbishop of that city. Pope Leo XII appointed him coadjutor to Archbishop Perche on October 23, 1879, with the title of titular Archbishop of Jonopolis, but also confided to him the administration of the Diocese of Natchitoches. He became Archbishop of New Orleans on December 27, 1883, and received the pallium from the hands of the late Cardinal Gibbons in January, 1884. In the hope of regaining his lost health, he returned to his native France, where he died on September 23, 1887.

8. JANSSENS, FRANCIS.

The fifth Archbishop of New Orleans was born in Tillburg, Holland, on October 17, 1843. At the age of thirteen he commenced his studies in the Seminary at Bois-le-Duc, and completed them at the American College in Louvain. He was ordained to the priesthood on December 22, 1862, and arrived at Richmond, Virginia, in September, 1868. He held various positions of importance while engaged in work there and when the Diocese of Natchez became vacant he was appointed Bishop thereof and was consecrated in Richmond, Virginia, by Cardinal (then Archbishop) Gibbons, on May 1, 1881. He was promoted to the Archiepiscopal See of New Orleans on August 7, 1888, and he died aboard the steamer Creole, bound for New York City, on June 19, 1897.

11. SHAW, JOHN.

The present Archbishop of New Orleans was born in Mobile, Alabama, on December 12, 1863, and received his educational training at Navan, County Meath, Ireland, and the American College in Rome where he was ordained to the priesthood on May 26, 1888. Upon his return to the United States he labored in the Diocese of Mobile until his appointment as coadjutor to Bishop Forest of San Antonio, on February 7, 1910. Bishop Allen, of Mobile, consecrated him titular Bishop of Castañala on April 14, 1910. On account of the ill health of his immediate superior he was designated Administrator of the Diocese on May 18, 1910. He succeeded to the See of San Antonio on March 11, 1911, and was promoted to the Archiepiscopal See of New Orleans in 1918.

Rt. Rev. John M. Laval, born in New Orleans in 1854, ordained to the priesthood on November 10, 1877; appointed titular Bishop of Hierocaesarea on September 7, 1911, and consecrated by Archbishop Blenk on November 20, 1911, is the present auxiliary Bishop of New Orleans.

II. Diocese of Mobile (1829)

On May 15, 1829, Pius VIII erected the Diocese of Mobile with the Rt. Rev. Michael Portier as first Bishop.

When erected as a Diocese, the See of Mobile comprised the states of Florida and Alabama. At present the territorial limits are the State of Alabama, comprising an area of 58,821 square miles.

1. MEERSCHAERT, THEOPHILE.

The first, and present, Bishop of this See, was born at Roussignes, Belgium, on August 24, 1847, and studied at the American College in Louvain and was ordained to the priesthood on December 23, 1871. He came to the United States the following year and labored in the Diocese of Natchez until 1891, when he was appointed first Vicar-Apostolic of Oklahoma and titular Bishop of Sydima. He was consecrated on September 8, 1891, and became first Bishop of the Diocese of Oklahoma on August 23, 1905.

XI. Diocese of Lafayette (1918)

The formal erection of the See of Lafayette was decreed by Benedict XV on May 23, 1918, and the Rt. Rev. Jules B. Jeanmard was consecrated as first Bishop on December 8, 1918.

The Diocese comprises the civil parishes, or counties, of Acadia, Allen, Beauregard, Calcasieu, Cameron, Evangeline, Iberia, Jefferson, Davis, Lafayette, St. Landry, St. Martin, St. Mary and Vermillion in the southwestern part of the State of Louisiana; an area of 11,090 square miles.

The present Bishop of this Diocese was born at Breaux-Bridge, Louisiana, on August 15, 1879, and received his education at St. Joseph's Seminary, at the Kenrick Seminary, St. Louis, Missouri, and the St. Louis Seminary in New Orleans. He was ordained to the priesthood in St. Joseph's Church, New Orleans, on June 11, 1903. He acted as secretary to Archbishop Blenk from July 6, 1906, to 1914; chancellor of the Archdiocese and later Vicar-General; served as Administrator sede vacante from April 20, 1917, to June 2, 1918. He was appointed first Bishop of Lafayette on July 18, 1918, and he was consecrated by His Excellency, the Apostolic Delegate, Most Rev. John Bonzano, on December 8, 1918, at the Cathedral of St. Louis in New Orleans.

CHAPTER V

THE PROVINCE OF NEW YORK

Pope Pius IX erected the Province of New York on July 19, 1850, with the Rt. Rev. John Hughes as first Archbishop.

In 1850, the Archdiocese of New York comprised the State of New York, part of New Jersey, and all the New England States, with the Dioceses of Boston (1808), Albany (1847), Buffalo (1847), and Hartford (1843) as suffragan sees. At present, the Province is confined to the States of New York and New Jersey, and the Bahama Islands, and the suffragan sees are Albany (1847), Buffalo (1847), Brooklyn (1853), Newark (1853), Rochester (1868), Ogdensburg (1872), Trenton (1881), and Syracuse (1886).

I. Diocese of New York (1808)

The See of New York was one of the four dioceses created by Pius VII on April 8, 1808. The Rt. Rev. Luke Concanen, O. P., was consecrated first Bishop on April 24, 1808, but he never reached the United States. The first resident Bishop of this Diocese was the Rt. Rev. John Connelly, O. P., who was consecrated on November 6, 1814.

The original limits of the Diocese of New York were the entire State of that name, and what was known at that time as East Jersey. At present the Diocese comprises the boroughs of Manhattan, Bronx, and Richmond, of the city of New York, and the counties of Dutchess, Orange, Putnam, Rockland, Sullivan, Ulster and Westchester in the State of New York, also the Bahama Islands; the total area is 9,183 square miles.

1. CONCANEN, LUKE, O. P.

Bishop Concanen was born in Ireland (Connaught), in the ecclesiastical Province of Tuam. A letter to Bishop Carroll (December 29, 1803), in which he states that he was then fifty-six years of age proves that he was born there about 1747.

Most probably he entered the Dominican Order in 1765 or 1766. His educational training was received at the Minerva and the College of San Clemente at Rome. He was ordained to the priesthood at Rome some time between the years 1770-1771. He held important offices in the Dominican Order until his appointment as first Bishop of New York on April 8, 1808. He was consecrated at Rome in the Church of St. Catherine of Sienna on April 24, 1808, by Cardinal Michele de Pietro. He died at Naples on June 19, 1810.

C., contain photostatic copies of his correspondence); cf. CHR, Vol. i, p. 311, Vol. ii, p. 140.

2. CONNOLLY, JOHN, O. P.

The first resident Bishop of New York was born at Drogheda, County Meath, Ireland, in 1750. He joined the Dominican Order in his early youth and made his studies at Rome, where he was ordained to the priesthood. Appointed as successor to Bishop Concanen for the See of New York, he was consecrated in Rome on November 6, 1814, by Cardinal Brancadora, and reached New York the following year, on November 24. He died there on February 6, 1825.

3. DUBOIS, JOHN.

The founder of Mount Saint Mary's, Emmitsburg, Maryland, and the third Bishop of New York, was born in Paris, on August 24, 1754. He received his early educational training at home until he was prepared to enter the College of Louis le Grand. He was ordained to the priesthood in Paris on September 22, 1787. On account of the French Revolution he was forced to leave his native land, and he came to the United States in 1791. After a few years of missionary activity, he began his career as an educator in 1808. He was consecrated by Archbishop Maréchal on October 29, 1826. He died in New York on December 25, 1842.

4. HUGHES, JOHN.

This distinguished ecclesiastic was born at Annalogh, County Tyrone, Ireland, on June 24, 1797, and emigrated to the United States with his parents in 1816. He entered Mount Saint Mary's in preparation for the priesthood and was ordained on October 15, 1826. He was appointed coadjutor to Bishop Dubois and titular Bishop of Basileopolis and was consecrated by Bishop Dubois in New York City on January 7, 1838. For a time he had a large share in the administration of diocesan affairs and upon the death of Bishop Dubois succeeded to the see on December 20, 1842. He was made Archbishop on July 19, 1859, and died in New York on January 3, 1864.

5. McCLOSKEY, JOHN CARDINAL.

The first American Cardinal was born at Brooklyn, New York, on March 20, 1810. He was sent to the leading classical school in New York City for his early training and in 1822 entered Mount Saint Mary's College at Emmitsburg. He was ordained to the priesthood in New York City on January 12, 1834. In February, 1859, he was named professor of philosophy at Nyack-on-the-Hudson and remained there until the college was destroyed by fire. After a sojourn in Europe he returned to his native diocese in 1837 and was appointed pastor of St. Joseph's Church. Four years later he was selected to be the first President of St. John's College, a position he held until his appointment as coadjutor to Bishop Hughes. He was consecrated titular Bishop of Axiere by Bishop Hughes on March 18, 1844, and on May 21, 1847, he was transferred to the See of Albany. He was promoted to the See of New York on May 6, 1864, and was preconized Cardinal on March 15, 1875. He died in New York City on October 10, 1885.

8. HAYES, PATRICK J.

The present Archbishop of New York was born in that city on November 20, 1867. He attended St. Joseph's Seminary at Troy, New York, and was ordained to the priesthood on September 8, 1892. He continued his studies at the Catholic University of America for the next two years, after which he was stationed at St. Gabriel's in New York City. In August, 1903, he was made chancellor of the Archdiocese and President of St. John's College. He was elevated to the rank of Domestic Prelate in November, 1907, and on July 3, 1914, he was appointed Auxiliary to the Bishop of New York and titular Bishop of Tagaste. Cardinal Farley consecrated him on October 21, 1914, in New York City. On November 24, 1917, he was chosen Ordinary of the Chaplains of the Army and Navy, and on March 10, 1919, he was promoted to the vacant archiepiscopal See of New York.

The Rt. Rev. John J. Dunn is the present Auxiliary Bishop of New York. He was born in that city on August 31, 1869; was ordained to the priesthood on May 30, 1896, after completing his theological studies at St. Joseph's Seminary of Troy, New York, and was stationed at the Church of Saint John the Evangelist since June 10, 1896. He was consecrated Auxiliary Bishop of New York in St. Patrick's Cathedral on October 28, 1921, by Archbishop Hayes.

II. The Diocese of Albany (1847)

The Diocese of Albany was erected on April 23, 1847, and the Rt. Rev. John McCloskey (later Cardinal) was appointed as first Bishop on May 21, 1847.

When first established the limits of the Diocese of Albany included the future Dioceses of Ogdensburg and Syracuse. At present it comprises the entire counties of Albany, Columbia, Delaware, Fulton, Greene, Montgomery, Otsego, Rensselaer, Saratoga, Schenectady, Schoharie, Warren and Washington and that part of Herkimer and Hamilton counties south of the northern line of the townships of Ohio and Russia in the State of New York; an area of 10,419 square miles.

At present it comprises that part of the State of Ohio south of 40° 41", being the counties south of the northern line of Mercer, Anglaize, Hardin, all west of the eastern line of Marion, Union and Madison counties, and all west of the Scioto River to the Ohio River; an area of 12,043 square miles.

1. FENWICK, EDWARD DOMINIC, O. P.

The founder of the Dominican Order in the United States and the first Bishop of Cincinnati was born in Saint Mary's County, Maryland, on August 16, 1768. At the age of sixteen he was sent to the Dominican College at Bornheim in Flanders, and upon the completion of his college course he entered the Dominican Order there on September 4, 1788. He was ordained to the priesthood on February 23, 1793, and spent the early years of his priestly life in Europe as teacher. Appointed Superior of the first band of Dominicans to come to the United States, he arrived at Norfolk in November, 1804. He visited his relatives in Maryland and also Bishop Carroll, who assigned to him and his Order the field of Kentucky as the scene of future labor. The next fourteen years of his life he spent in the missionary fields of what are now the States of Ohio and Kentucky. On January 13, 1822, he was consecrated first Bishop of Cincinnati by the Rt. Rev. Benedict J. Flaget in Saint Rose's Chapel, Washington County, Kentucky. While on an episcopal visit through Ohio he was stricken with cholera and died at Wooster, Ohio, on September 26, 1832.

2. PURCELL, JOHN BAPTIST.

The first Archbishop of Cincinnati was born at Mallow, Ireland, on February 26, 1800, and made his classical studies there. Coming to the United States, he entered Mount Saint Mary's at Emmitsburg on June 20, 1820, to study for the priesthood. He was ordained in Paris on May 20, 1826, and the following year he returned to the United States and was assigned to Mount Saint Mary's as professor and later was selected to be President of this institution. He was serving in that capacity when appointed to the vacant See of Cincinnati, and was consecrated in Baltimore by Archbishop Whitfield on October 18, 1833. He was elevated to the archiepiscopate on July 19, 1850, and he died at the Ursuline Convent in Brown County, Ohio, on July 4, 1883.

3. ELDER, WILLIAM H.

Archbishop Elder was born in Baltimore, Maryland, on March 22, 1819, and desiring to become a priest he entered Mount Saint Mary's at Emmitsburg in 1831. Eleven years later he was sent to Rome to complete his theology at the Urban College, where he received the Doctorate of Divinity. His ordination to the priesthood took place in Rome on March 29, 1846, and upon his return to the United States he was appointed a professor at Mount Saint Mary's, a position he held until his nomination as Bishop of Natchez. Archbishop F. P. Kenrick consecrated him in Baltimore on May 3, 1857. On January 30, 1880, he was transferred to the See of Cincinnati as titular Archbishop of Avara and Coadjutor to Archbishop Purcell. He succeeded to the See on July 4, 1883, and died in Cincinnati on October 31, 1904.

4. MOELLER, HENRY.

The present Archbishop of Cincinnati was born in that city on December 11, 1849. He studied philosophy and theology at the American College in Rome and was ordained to the priesthood on June 10, 1876. He served as pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Bellefontaine, Ohio; professor at Mount Saint Mary's of the West and chancellor of the Archdiocese before his appointment to the See of Columbus.

He was consecrated by Archbishop Elder on August 25, 1900. He was transferred to Cincinnati as Coadjutor to Archbishop Elder and titular Archbishop of Aeropoli on April 27, 1903. He succeeded to the see on October 31, 1904.

II. Diocese of Bardstown-Louisville (1808-1841)

The Diocese of Bardstown, one of the four original suffragan sees of the Metropolitan See of Baltimore, was erected by Pius VII on April 8, 1808, and the Rt. Rev. Benedict J. Flaget, D.D., was consecrated as its first Bishop on November 4, 1810. In 1841, the diocesan seat was transferred to Louisville.

Originally, the Diocese included the territory embraced by the States of Kentucky, Ohio, Tennessee and the old Northwest Territory. At present, its territorial limits comprise that part of Kentucky lying west of Carroll, Owen, Franklin, Woodford, Jessamine, Garrard, Rock Castle, Laurel and Whitley counties; an area of 22,714 square miles.

1. FLAGET, BENEDICT J.

Bishop Flaget was born at Coutournat, near Billom, Auvergne, France, on November 7, 1763. His early training was received from his uncle, Canon Flaget, and at seventeen he went to the Sulpician Seminary of Clermont to study philosophy and theology. On November 1, 1783, he entered the Society of Saint Sulpice, and was ordained to the priesthood in 1787 at Issy. He came to the United States on March 29, 1792. Shortly afterward Bishop Carroll sent him to the west, but later he was recalled to become professor at Georgetown College. Appointed Bishop of Bardstown on April 8, 1808, he was consecrated by Archbishop Carroll on November 4, 1810. He died in Louisville on February 11, 1850.

2. DAVID, JOHN B.

The second Bishop of Bardstown was born at Nantes, France, on January 4, 1761. His early educational training was received in and around Nantes, and after joining the Sulpicians he was ordained to the priesthood on September 24, 1785. He accompanied Bishop Flaget to this country in 1792, and served as professor at Georgetown and at Mount Saint Mary's College, Baltimore. In 1810 or the following year he went to Bardstown to labor as a missionary; he was consecrated coadjutor-Bishop of that see by Bishop Flaget on August 15, 1819, and upon the resignation of his superior he was appointed as his successor in November, 1832. He resigned in May, 1833, but he still continued to labor in the Diocese until his death, on July 12, 1841.

3. FLAGET, BENEDICT J.

Bishop Flaget was reappointed after the resignation of Bishop David in May, 1833, and became third Bishop of Bardstown. When the diocesan seat was changed to Louisville in 1841, he became Bishop under a new title. He died in that city at the advanced age of eighty-seven on February 11, 1850.

As a second coadjutor, Bishop Flaget had the Rt. Rev. Guy I. Chabrat.

He was born at Chambre, France, on December 27, 1787. He came to Kentucky in 1809 and was ordained to the priesthood on December 25, 1811. He was consecrated as coadjutor of Bardstown by Bishop Flaget on July 20, 1834. From 1835-1839, during the latter's absence, he administered the Diocese. He was stricken with a disease of the eyes, resigned his position in 1847 and retired to his native France where he died, at Mauriac, on November 21, 1868.

7. O'DONAGHUE, DENIS.

The present Bishop of Louisville was born in Indiana, on November 30, 1848, and received his education at Saint Meinrad's College and Saint Thomas Seminary at Bardstown. After the completion of his theology at the Grand Seminary, Montreal, he was ordained to the priesthood on September 6, 1874. He served as parish priest in Indianapolis and chancellor of that Diocese before he was appointed titular Bishop of Pomario and Auxiliary of Indianapolis on February 10, 1900. He was consecrated by Bishop Chatard on April 25, 1900, and was transferred to the Diocese of Louisville as eighth Bishop on February 7, 1910.

III. Diocese of Detroit (1833)

On March 8, 1833, Pope Gregory XVI created the Diocese of Detroit and the Rt. Rev. Frederick Résé was consecrated as its first Bishop on October 6, 1833.

The Diocese of Detroit embraced originally the State of Michigan and the Northwest Territory. At present it comprises the counties of the lower peninsula of the State of Michigan south of the counties of Ottawa, Kent, Montcalm, Gratiot and Saginaw, and east of the counties of Saginaw and Bay; an area of 18,558 square miles.

2. BORGESS, CASPAR.

The second Bishop of Detroit was born at Koppenberg, near Essen, Hanover, Germany, on August 1, 1824, and came to the United States at the age of thirteen. He made his studies in Philadelphia and in Cincinnati, where he entered Saint Francis Xavier College, and finally was enrolled in the Diocesan Seminary. He was ordained to the priesthood on December 8, 1847, and after ten years' service he was named chancellor of the diocese and was acting as such when appointed Coadjutor and Administrator of Detroit by Pius IX on February 8, 1870. Bishop Rosecrans consecrated him titular Bishop of Claydon on April 24, 1870. He became second Bishop of Detroit at the death of Bishop Résé on December 29, 1871. On April 16, 1888, he resigned and received the titular See of Phacuistes. He died at Kalamazoo, Michigan, on May 3, 1890.

4. GALLAGHER, MICHAEL J.

The present Bishop of Detroit was born at Auburn, Michigan, on November 18, 1866, and received his education at Assumption College, Sandwich, Ontario; Mungret College, Limerick (1885-1889); University of Innsbruck (Austria, 1889-1894). He was ordained to the priesthood on March 19, 1893, and upon his return to the United States he was assigned to parochial work in the Diocese of Grand Rapids. He served as secretary, chancellor and Vicar-General under Bishop Richter, and was consecrated by him Coadjutor cum jure successionis and titular Bishop of Tipasa on September 8, 1915. He succeeded to the See of Grand Rapids on December 26, 1916, and was transferred to the Diocese of Detroit on July 18, 1918.

IV. Diocese of Indianapolis (1834-1898)

Pope Gregory XVI erected the Diocese of Vincennes on May 6, 1834, and the Rt. Rev. Simon G. Bruté, was consecrated as its first Bishop on October 28, 1834. The diocesan seat was transferred to Indianapolis on March 28, 1898.

When erected as a Diocese, the territorial limits of this see extended to the State of Indiana and the eastern part of Illinois. Gradually, it was narrowed down to the State of Indiana and, in 1857, upon the erection of the Diocese of Fort Wayne, it received its present extension of the southern half of the State of Indiana; an area of 18,749 square miles.

1. BRUTE DE REMUR, SIMON G.

Bishop Bruté was born at Remur, France, on March 20, 1779, and received his early education in the schools of that city until the French Revolution broke out. He was ordained to the priesthood on June 10, 1808, and joined the Sulpicians. He taught theology for two years in France and then sailed to the United States in company with Bishop-elect Flaget. In 1834, he was appointed first Bishop of Vincennes, and on October 28, 1834, was consecrated by Bishop Flaget in Saint Louis. While attending the Provincial Council of Baltimore in 1837 he contracted a cold which later developed into consumption from which he died on June 26, 1839, at Vincennes, Indiana.

2. DE LA HAILANDIERE, LAURENT CELESTINE RENE.

The second Bishop of this see was born at a small village near Cambourg, France, on May 2, 1798. At the age of twenty-four, he decided to abandon the legal profession and study for the priesthood. Accordingly, he entered the Seminary at Rennes and upon the completion of his course was ordained to the priesthood in Paris on May 28, 1825. Bishop Bruté induced him to come to the United States with him in 1836, where he labored zealously as a missionary in the State of Indiana. While touring Europe in the interests of the diocese in 1838, he was informed of his appointment as coadjutor to Bishop Bruté and titular Bishop of Axierne. His consecration took place in Paris on August 18, 1839, with Bishop Jansen of Nancy as consecrating prelate. Bishop Bruté having died before his consecration, he became Bishop of Vincennes immediately. He resigned the see on July 16, 1847, and retired to his native town of Triandin, France, where he died May 1, 1882.

Appointed Bishop of Toledo on August 11, 1911; transferred to the See of Cleveland in May, 1921.

(Cf. Cleveland.)

2. STRITCH, SAMUEL.

The present Bishop of Toledo is the youngest member of the Hierarchy in the United States, having been born August 17, 1887, in Nashville, Tennessee. After graduating from the parochial school in his native city he entered Saint Gregory's College, Cincinnati, and remained there as a student for two years. He was then sent to the American College at Rome where he completed his studies and was ordained to the priesthood on May 21, 1909. Upon his return to the United States he was appointed assistant at Saint Patrick's Church in Nashville. He was chancellor of the diocese when appointed Bishop, and was consecrated in Toledo on November 30, 1921, by Archbishop Moeller of Cincinnati.

CHAPTER VII

THE PROVINCE OF SAN FRANCISCO (1853)

The Province of San Francisco was erected on July 29, 1853, with the Rt. Rev. Joseph S. Alemany, O.P., as first Archbishop.

When erected, the Province comprised only the State of California, with the Diocese of Monterey as a suffragan see. At present the Province of San Francisco includes the States of California, Nevada and Utah, with the Dioceses of Monterey-Los Angeles (1840-1850), Grass Valley-Sacramento (1868-1886), and Salt Lake City (1890), as suffragans.

I. San Francisco (1853)

San Francisco was created an Archdiocese immediately, and included the entire northern part of California. At present it comprises the counties of San Francisco, San Mateo, San Joaquin, Stanislaus, Sonoma, Alameda, Contra Costa, Lake, Marin, Mendocino, Napa Solano, and their portions of Santa Cruz, Santa Clara and Merced, lying north of 37°, 5" north latitude, in the State of California; an area of 16,856 square miles.

1. ALEMANY, JOSEPH SADC, O. P.

The first Archbishop of San Francisco was born on July 13, 1814, at Vich, Province of Catalonia, Spain. After completing his primary studies, he entered the Dominican Order at the age of fifteen and went to Rome to finish his education and was ordained to the priesthood on March 27, 1837, at Viterbo, Italy. In 1841 he chose the American missions for his future work and spent about ten years in missionary activities in Ohio, Kentucky, and Tennessee, during which he held the office of Provincial for a certain period. While at Rome in 1850, attending a general chapter of the Dominican Order, he was chosen Bishop of Monterey (May 31, 1850) and was consecrated in the Eternal City by Cardinal Frasoni on June 30, 1850. He was transferred to the See of San Francisco on July 29, 1853, and resigned on December 28, 1884. He retired to Spain where he died at Valencia on April 14, 1888.

2. RIORDAN, PATRICK W.

The second Archbishop of San Francisco was born at Chatham, New Brunswick, on August 27, 1841, and made his early studies at Notre Dame University, whence he went to Rome as one of twelve students who formed the first class in the North American College in the Eternal City. Subsequently, he went to Louvain and received a Doctorate in Sacred Theology, and was ordained to the priesthood at Mechlin, Belgium, on June 10, 1865. Upon his return to the United States he was appointed professor at Saint Mary's-of-the-Lake, Chicago, and also held the rectorship of St. James Church in that city. While in that capacity, he was chosen as coadjutor Bishop of San Francisco and was consecrated on September 16, 1883, at Chicago by Archbishop Feehan. He succeeded to the see upon the resignation of Archbishop Alemany on December 28, 1884. He died in San Francisco on December 27, 1914.

Most Reverend George Montgomery, consecrated Bishop of Monterey on May 8, 1894, was chosen as titular Archbishop of Osino and Coadjutor of San Francisco in January, 1903.

(Cf. Los Angeles.)

3. HANNA, EDWARD J.

The present Archbishop of San Francisco was born at Rochester, New York, on July 21, 1860, and made his theological studies at Rome, Munich, and Cambridge. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1885, taught in the College of Propaganda for a year, and later in Saint Bernard's Seminary in Rochester. He was appointed Auxiliary Bishop of San Francisco on October 22, 1912, and consecrated by Bishop Hickey on December 4, 1912. He succeeded to the see on June 1, 1915.

II. Diocese of Monterey and Los Angeles (1840-1850)

The Diocese of the Californias was erected on April 27, 1840, and the Rt. Rev. Francis García Diego y Moreno was consecrated Bishop. Ten years later the Diocese of Monterey was created and the Rt. Rev. Joseph S. Alemany was consecrated as its first Bishop. This change was necessitated on account of political disturbances with Mexico.

When erected, the Diocese of Monterey included all Upper California. At present it comprises the counties of Fresno, Inyo, Imperial, Kern, Los Angeles, Monterey, Riverside, San Benito, San Bernardino, Orange, San Diego, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Tulare, and those portions of the counties of Santa Cruz, Santa Clara and Merced, lying south of 37°, 5" north latitude, in the State of California; an area of 80,000 square miles.

He made his theological course at Saint Mary's Seminary at Perryville, Missouri, and was ordained to the priesthood on August 15, 1897. Two years later he received the degree of Doctor of Divinity at the Minerva in Rome. He was appointed Bishop of Salt Lake on June 1, 1915, and was consecrated by Archbishop Hanna of San Francisco on August 24, 1915.

CHAPTER VIII

THE PROVINCE OF BOSTON (1875).

This Province was one of the four metropolitan sees erected by Pius IX on July 12, 1875, and the Right Reverend John Williams, D.D., was appointed its first Archbishop.

When created, the Archdiocese had as suffragan sees the Dioceses of Hartford (1843), Burlington (1853), Portland (1853), Springfield (1870) and Providence (1872). The Province still embraces the New England States and to the original suffragan sees have been added the Dioceses of Manchester (1884) and Fall River (1904).

I. Diocese of Boston (1808)

The Diocese of Boston was erected on April 8, 1808, and the Right Reverend John L. De Cheverus was consecrated as its first Bishop on November 1, 1810.

When erected, the Diocese of Boston included all the New England States, but at present it comprises only the Counties of Essex, Middlesex, Suffolk, Norfolk and Plymouth, in the State of Massachusetts, the towns of Mattapoisett, Marion and Wareham excepted; an area of 2,465 square miles.

1. DE CHEVERUS, JOHN LOUIS LEFEBVRE.

The first Bishop of Boston was born at Mayenne, France, on January 28, 1768. His early training was received from his mother who later sent him to the College of Louis le Grand to complete his education. He was ordained to the priesthood in Paris on December 18, 1790, and upon refusing to take the constitutional oath to the Directory, he was cast into prison, from which he made his escape to England. In response to an invitation from his friend Abbé Matignon to come to this country, he arrived in Boston on October 3, 1796, and labored incessantly as a missionary in that city and in various parts of New England. When the See of Boston was erected, he was chosen to be its first Bishop, but he was not consecrated until two years later (on December 1, 1810) by Archbishop Carroll. Owing to ill health he was transferred to the Diocese of Montauban in France on January 15, 1823. He was promoted to the archiepiscopal see of Bordeaux on July, 1826, and preconized Cardinal on February 1, 1836. He died in Bordeaux, France, on July 19, 1836.

2. FENWICK, BENEDICT JOSEPH.

The second Bishop of Boston was born at Leonardtown, Maryland, on September 3, 1782. In 1793 he was sent to Georgetown and in 1805 he entered the Sulpician Seminary at Baltimore to study for the priesthood. Upon the restoration of the Society of Jesus in 1806, he was received as one of its members and was ordained to the priesthood at Georgetown, D. C., on March 12, 1808. As a priest, he labored in New York as pastor, Administrator, and Vicar-General. His appointment as Bishop of Boston was announced on May 10, 1825, and on November 1, 1825, he was consecrated by Archbishop Maréchal. He died at Boston, on August 11, 1846.

3. FITZPATRICK, JOHN B.

Bishop Fitzpatrick was born in Boston on November 1, 1812, and received his education in the city schools. His studies for the priesthood were made at the Sulpician Seminaries in Montreal and in Paris, and he was ordained to the priesthood on June 13, 1840. Upon his return to Boston, he was made assistant at the Cathedral and later served as pastor at East Cambridge. He was consecrated titular Bishop of Callipolis and coadjutor by Bishop Fenwick on March 24, 1844, and succeeded to the see on August 11, 1846. He died in Boston on February 13, 1866.

5. O'CONNELL, WILLIAM CARDINAL.

The present Archbishop of Boston was born at Lowell, Massachusetts, on December 8, 1859. After the completion of his early studies in the primary schools of his native city, he attended Saint Charles College at Ellicott City, Maryland. He graduated from the Jesuit College in Boston (1881) and was sent to the American College in Rome, where he was ordained to the priesthood on June 8, 1884. The following year he was appointed assistant at Medford and, later, served in Boston in that capacity until 1895, when he was appointed the Rector of the American College in Rome—a position he held during the subsequent five years. He was then nominated Bishop of Portland, Maine, and was consecrated by His Eminence, Cardinal Satolli, on May 19, 1901. On account of his success as special envoy to Japan, the Holy Father named Bishop O'Connell coadjutor to Archbishop Williams of Boston and on August 30, 1907, he succeeded to the See. He was created Cardinal on November 27, 1911.

The present Auxiliary Bishop of Boston is the Rt. Rev. Joseph G. Anderson, who was born in that city on September 30, 1865. He received his seminary training at Saint John's, Brighton, and was ordained to the priesthood on May 20, 1892, in Boston. He served as Chaplain at the Massachusetts State Prison; Director of the Charities Bureau and Pastor of St. Paul's before his appointment as Auxiliary Bishop. He was consecrated on July 25, 1909, by Cardinal O'Connell.

II. Diocese of Hartford (1843)

Pope Gregory XVI created the Diocese of Hartford on November 28, 1843, and the Reverend William Tyler, then Vicar-General of Boston, was consecrated as its first Bishop on March 17, 1844.

Originally, the Diocese of Hartford included the States of Connecticut and Rhode Island. When the Diocese of Providence was erected in 1872, Rhode Island was absconded, and Hartford now comprises only the State of Connecticut; an area of 5,004 square miles.

6. TIERNEY, MICHAEL.

Bishop Tierney was born at Ballylooby, County Tipperary, Ireland, on September 29, 1839. He came to the United States at an early age and spent his youth in the environs of Norwalk, Connecticut. After the completion of his studies in Montreal and at Troy, New York, he was ordained to the priesthood in May, 1866, and immediately after Bishop McFarland made him his chancellor and rector of the Cathedral. He was consecrated on February 22, 1894, by Archbishop Williams, and died at Hartford on October 5, 1908.

REUSS, op. cit., p. 103; CHR, Vol. ii, p. 298.

7. NILAN, JOHN J.

The present Bishop of Hartford was born in Massachusetts on August 5, 1855, and received his educational training at Saint Joseph's Seminary, Troy, New York. He was ordained to the priesthood on December 21, 1878, and commenced his priestly career in the Archdiocese of Boston. He was acting as pastor of Saint Joseph's Church in Amesbury, Massachusetts, when appointed Bishop of Hartford on February 14, 1910, and was consecrated by His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell, on April 28, 1910, in the Cathedral at Hartford.

Bishop Murray was acting as chancellor of the Diocese of Hartford when appointed titular Bishop of Flavia and Auxiliary to Bishop Nilan. He was born in Waterbury, Connecticut, on February 26, 1877, and he completed his theological training at the American College in Rome, where he was ordained to the priesthood on April 14, 1900. He was consecrated by the Most Rev. John Bonzano, Apostolic Delegate, on April 28, 1920, in Saint Joseph's Cathedral, Hartford, Connecticut.

III. Diocese of Burlington (1853)

The Diocese of Burlington was erected by Pius IX on July 15, 1853, and the Very Reverend Louis de Goesbriand, then Vicar-General of the Diocese of Cleveland, was named as first Bishop and consecrated in New York City on October 30, 1853.

The Diocese comprises its original territory—the State of Vermont; an area of 9,135 square miles.

1. DE GOESBRIAND, LOUIS.

The first Bishop of Burlington was born at Saint Urbain, France, on August 4, 1816, and received his entire education in the schools of that country, completing his theology at St. Sulpice, Paris. He was ordained to the priesthood on July 13, 1840, by Bishop Rosati and shortly after set sail for the United States to labor in the Diocese of Cincinnati. When the Diocese of Cleveland was erected, Bishop Rappe selected him to be his Vicar-General, an appointment he held until his elevation to the episcopate. He was consecrated in New York City by Archbishop Bedini on October 30, 1853. He was Dean of the American Hierarchy at the time of his death on November 3, 1899.

2. MICHAUD, JOHN S.

Bishop Michaud was born in Burlington, Vermont, on November 24, 1843, and made his theological studies at Saint Joseph's Seminary, Troy, N. Y. His ordination to the priesthood took place on June 7, 1873. When Bishop De Goesbriand asked for a coadjutor in 1892, the choice fell upon the Reverend John Michaud, then pastor at Bennington, who was consecrated titular Bishop of Modra by Archbishop Williams on June 29, 1892. Upon the retirement of his Ordinary, he became Administrator of the Diocese and succeeded to the See on November 3, 1899. He died at Burlington on December 22, 1908.

3. RICE, JOHN J.

The present Bishop of Burlington was born at Leicester, Massachusetts, on December 6, 1871, and received his early training at Leicester Academy and at Holy Cross College. After graduating from college, he entered the seminary at Montreal, and on the completion of his course was ordained to the priesthood in Springfield, Massachusetts, on September 29, 1894. After his ordination, he went to Rome for post graduate work at the Propaganda and upon his return, he labored in the Springfield Diocese until 1901, when he accepted the Chair of Philosophy at Saint John's Seminary at Brighton, Massachusetts. Later he returned to his native diocese and served as pastor of St. Peter's Church at Northbridge, Massachusetts. Appointed Bishop of Burlington in 1910, he was consecrated by Bishop Beaven in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception at Burlington, on April 14, 1910.

IV. Diocese of Portland (1853)

The Diocese of Portland was erected on July 29, 1853, and the Right Reverend David W. Bacon, D.D., was consecrated as its first Bishop on April 22, 1855.

Formerly, the Diocese of Portland included the States of Maine and New Hampshire, but upon the erection of the Diocese of Manchester, in 1884, this latter State was absconded from its area. As a result, its territorial extent at present is confined to the State of Maine; an area of 29,895 square miles.

1. BACON, DAVID W.

The first Bishop of Portland was born in New York City, on September 15, 1813, and made his classical studies at the Sulpician College in Montreal and his theological studies at St. Mary's, Baltimore. He was ordained to the priesthood on December 13, 1838, and began his labors in the parishes of New York City. In 1841 he was sent to Brooklyn to organize the third parish erected in that city and remained there until 1855, when he was appointed Bishop of the newly created Diocese of Portland. His consecration took place in New York City on April 22, 1855, with Archbishop Hughes as the consecrating prelate. Accompanying Archbishop McCloskey on a trip to Europe in 1874, he was stricken with illness while abroad and on the homeward voyage became worse. He survived until the ship reached New York City, where he died on November 5, 1874.

I. Diocese of Philadelphia (1808)

The Diocese of Philadelphia, one of the four original suffragan sees of Baltimore, was erected by Pius VII on April 8, 1808, and the Rt. Rev. Michael Egan was consecrated as its first Bishop on October 28, 1810.

In the beginning, the Diocese included the States of Pennsylvania, Delaware and West Jersey. At present it comprises all the City and County of Philadelphia, and the Counties of Berks, Bucks, Carbon, Chester, Delaware, Lehigh, Montgomery, Northampton and Schuylkill in the State of Pennsylvania; an area of 5,043 square miles.

1. EGAN, MICHAEL.

The first Bishop of Philadelphia was born in Galway, Ireland, in 1761, and entered the Franciscan Order at an early age. He came to the United States in 1802 and was received into the Diocese of Baltimore, where he served as pastor in various cities. In 1808 he was appointed first Bishop of the newly created See of Philadelphia and was consecrated by Archbishop Carroll in Baltimore on October 28, 1810. He died in Philadelphia on July 22, 1814.

2. CONWELL, HENRY.

The second Bishop of Philadelphia was born at Moneymore, County Derry, Ireland, in 1748. He made his studies for the priesthood at the Irish College in Paris. His ordination to the priesthood occurred, probably in 1776, either at Paris or at Armagh. He was serving as Vicar-General of the Diocese of Armagh when appointed Bishop of Philadelphia on November 26, 1819. He was consecrated by the Vicar-Apostolic of London, Bishop Poynter, on September 24, 1820, and shortly afterward he came to the United States. After years of diocesan strife Bishop Conwell relinquished the affairs of the See to Reverend William Matthews, and the First Provincial Council of Baltimore petitioned the Holy See to appoint a coadjutor with the right of administration for Philadelphia. The request was granted and the Right Reverend Francis P. Kenrick became coadjutor. Bishop Conwell died in Philadelphia on April 22, 1842.

3. KENRICK, FRANCIS PATRICK.

Became Bishop of Philadelphia on April 22, 1843, and was transferred to the See of Baltimore on August 19, 1851.

(Cf. Baltimore.)

4. NEUMANN, JOHN.

Bishop Neumann was born at Prachatitz, Bohemia, on March 28, 1811, and began his studies for the priesthood in the Seminary at Budweis in 1831. He completed his course at the University of Prague in August, 1835, and returned to his native city for ordination. While there he decided to come to the United States as a seminarian to labor in the missions of this country, and accordingly set sail for New York, arriving there on June 2, 1836. He was adopted by Bishop Dubois and was ordained to the priesthood a few days later, on June 25, 1836. After laboring as a missionary in western New York, he entered the Redemptorist Congregation in 1840, and the following year was chosen to be Vice-Provincial of the Congregation in America. Under obedience, he was consecrated Bishop of Philadelphia at Baltimore by Archbishop Kenrick on March 28, 1852, Pius IX insisting that he accept the bishopric. He died quite suddenly in Philadelphia on January 5, 1860.

5. WOOD, JAMES F.

The first Archbishop of Philadelphia was born in that city on April 27, 1813. His early education was received there, and in 1827, he went to Cincinnati with his parents and obtained a position as a bank clerk. He was received into the Catholic Church by Bishop Purcell on April 17, 1838, and the next year, having decided to study for the priesthood, he was sent to Rome to pursue his studies at the Propaganda. He was appointed coadjutor-Bishop of the See of Philadelphia and was consecrated by Archbishop Purcell on April 26, 1857. The temporal administration of the diocese devolved on him even during the lifetime of Bishop Neumann and upon the death of the latter, on January 6, 1860, he succeeded to the See. He was made Archbishop on February 12, 1875, and presided over the First Provincial Council of Philadelphia on May 23, 1880. He died in Philadelphia on June 20, 1883.

8. DOUGHERTY, DENNIS CARDINAL.

The first Cardinal Archbishop of Philadelphia was born at Ashland, Pennsylvania, on August 16, 1865. He received his education at Saint Mary's College, Montreal, Canada; Saint Charles Seminary at Overbrook, and the American College in Rome, receiving the degree of Doctor of Divinity from the last school in 1890. On May 31, 1890, he was ordained to the priesthood by Cardinal Parocchi and, upon his return to the United States, he was made Professor of Dogmatic Theology at Overbrook. In 1903 he was selected for the bishopric of Neuva Segovia in the Phillipine Islands and was consecrated in Rome by Cardinal Satolli on June 14, 1903. His transfer to the See of Jaro in the same Island group became effective on April 19, 1908, and seven years later he was again transferred to the vacant See of Buffalo, New York, on December 6, 1915. He was promoted to the See of Philadelphia on April 30, 1918, and the following year, on May 6, he was invested with the pallium by the Most Reverend John Bonzano, Apostolic Delegate. He was preconized Cardinal on March 10, 1921.

The Right Reverend Michael J. Crane, D.D., is the present Auxiliary Bishop of Philadelphia, having been consecrated titular Bishop of the See of Curium on August 21, 1921, by Cardinal Dougherty. He was born in Ashland, Pennsylvania, on September 8, 1863. He was ordained to the priesthood on June 15, 1889, by Archbishop Ryan and in the following September he entered the Catholic University at Washington, where he remained a year doing post graduate work. On September 23, 1914, he was made a Papal Chamberlain with the rank of Monsignor, and on March 1, 1920, was appointed Vicar-General.

II. Diocese of Pittsburgh (1843)

On August 8, 1843, Pope Gregory XVI erected the Diocese of Pittsburgh and the Right Reverend Michael O'Connor was consecrated as its first Bishop on August 15, 1843.

The Diocese of Pittsburgh embraced the whole of western Pennsylvania until the Diocese of Erie was erected in 1853. It now comprises the Counties of Allegheny, Beaver, Lawrence, Washington, Greene, Fayette, Butler, Armstrong, Indiana and Westmoreland in the State of Pennsylvania; an area of 7,238 square miles.

CHAPTER X.

THE PROVINCE OF MILWAUKEE (1875)

The Province of Milwaukee was erected by Pius IX on July 12, 1875, and the Right Reverend John M. Henni, D. D., was appointed as first Archbishop.

The Province includes its original limits of the State of Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. When erected, the suffragan sees were the Dioceses of Sault Sainte Marie-Marquette (1857), Green Bay (1868) and La Crosse (1868). These Dioceses, with the See of Superior, erected in 1905, are the present suffragan sees.

I. Diocese of Milwaukee (1843)

In 1843 the Fathers of the Fifth Provincial Council of Baltimore petitioned the Holy See to erect the Diocese of Milwaukee, and on November 24, 1843, Pope Gregory XVI granted the request. The Right Reverend John M. Henni, D. D., was consecrated as first Bishop of the diocese on March 19, 1844.

When erected the Diocese had as territorial limits Wisconsin Territory (the present State of Wisconsin and that part of the present State of Minnesota which lies east of the Mississippi River). At present the Diocese comprises the Counties of Columbia, Dane, Dodge, Fond du Lac, Green, Green Lake, Jefferson, Kenosha, Marquette, Ozaukee, Racine, Rock, Sheboygan, Walworth, Washington, Waukesha, in the State of Wisconsin; an area of 9,321 square miles.

1. HENNI, JOHN M.

The first Archbishop of Milwaukee was born at Misanenga, Switzerland, on June 15, 1805, and studied philosophy and theology in Rome. He pledged his services to the Very Reverend Frederic Résé, then Vicar-General of the Diocese of Cincinnati, to labor in the missionary fields, and together with his fellow-student Kundig arrived in New York in 1828. Bishop Fenwick ordained him to the priesthood in Cincinnati on February 2, 1829, and he labored as a missionary in the State of Ohio, until appointed first Bishop of Milwaukee on November 28, 1843. He was consecrated by Archbishop Purcell on March 19, 1844. On June 3, 1875, he was promoted to the archiepiscopate and he died in Milwaukee on September 7, 1881.

3. PINTEN, JOSEPH.

The present Bishop of Superior was born in 1867 at Rockland, Michigan, and received his early education in the schools of Calumet. After completing studies in the Seminary at Milwaukee and at the American College, Rome, he was ordained to the priesthood on November 1, 1890. Upon his return to the United States he was stationed at Detour, Michigan, where he remained for a year and then spent four years as pastor of the Italian parish in Iron Mountain. He was sent to Marquette in 1897, and served as pastor there until 1916, when Bishop Eis designated him as Vicar-General of the diocese. He was acting in this capacity when appointed to the See of Superior and was consecrated by Archbishop Messmer on May 3, 1922.

CHAPTER XI

THE PROVINCE OF SANTA FE (1875)

Pope Pius IX erected the Province of Santa Fé on February 12, 1875, and the Right Reverend John B. Lamy, D.D., was appointed its first Archbishop.

When erected the Province had as suffragans the Vicariates-Apostolic of Colorado and Arizona, with the territory embraced by these states and New Mexico. The Dioceses of Denver (1887), Tucson (1897), and El Paso (1914), comprise the suffragan sees at present, with the territory embraced by the original Province and an added part of the State of Texas.

I. Diocese of Santa Fe (1853)

On July 29, 1853, the Holy See made a formal division of the Diocese of Durango and erected the Vicariate of New Mexico into the Diocese of Santa Fé, with the Right Reverend John B. Lamy, D.D., as first Bishop.

When erected the Diocese of Santa Fé embraced the territory now covered by the Dioceses of Denver and Tucson. At present, it comprises the State of New Mexico, Dona Ana, Grant and Eddy Counties excepted, with part of Sierra County; an area of 104,168 square miles.

1. LAMY, JOHN B.

The first Archbishop of Santa Fé was born on October 11, 1814, at Lempdes, France, and made his theological studies at the Grand Seminary of Mount Ferrand. He was ordained to the priesthood on December 22, 1838, and for the first months after his ordination acted as assistant priest in a parish of his native diocese. A year later, he received permission from his Ordinary to come to the Diocese of Cincinnati. He labored as a missionary in Ohio and Kentucky, until his appointment as Vicar-Apostolic of New Mexico. Bishop M. J. Spalding of Louisville, consecrated him at Cincinnati on November 24, 1850. When he was made Metropolitan in 1875, he received the pallium from the hands of Bishop Salpointe on June 16, 1875. He resigned the See on July 18, 1885, and was made titular Bishop of Cyzicus. He died at Santa Fé on February 13, 1888.

I. Diocese of Chicago (1843)

The Diocese of Chicago was erected on November 28, 1843, and the Right Reverend William Quarter was consecrated as its first Bishop on March 10, 1844.

The original territory of the Diocese of Chicago was the State of Illinois. At present it comprises the Counties of Cook, Lake, DuPage, Kankakee, Will and Grundy in the State of Illinois; an area of 3,620 square miles.

1. QUARTER, WILLIAM.

The first Bishop of Chicago was born in Killurine, King's County, Ireland, on January 21, 1806. His classical studies were made in private academies and later he attended Maynooth College. Soon after his arrival in America in 1822, he entered Mount Saint Mary's, at Emmitsburg, and on September 19, 1829, he was ordained to the priesthood for the Diocese of New York. He labored at old Saint Peter's and Saint Mary's in New York City until his appointment as first Bishop of Chicago. He was consecrated by Bishop Hughes on March 10, 1844. He died in Chicago on April 10, 1848.

2. VANDEVELDE, JAMES O., S.J.

The second Bishop of Chicago was born at Tirmonde, Belgium, on April 3, 1875. While a student at the seminary in Mechlin, he pledged his services to Father Nerinckx and accompanied him to the United States. He entered the Society of Jesus at Georgetown, D. C., in 1810, and was ordained to the priesthood on September 25, 1827, at Baltimore, Maryland. He was acting as professor when appointed to the See of Chicago and was consecrated by Archbishop Peter R. Kenrick on February 11, 1849. He was transferred to the See of Natchez on July 29, 1853, and died there on November 13, 1855.

3. O'REGAN, ANTHONY.

Bishop O'Regan was born in County Mayo, Ireland, in 1809, studied at Maynooth College and was ordained to the priesthood in November, 1834. After his ordination he acted as professor in the episcopal college of Tuam, a position he held for nearly ten years, leaving it in 1849, upon the invitation of Archbishop Kenrick of St. Louis, to come to this country. He was rector of the theological seminary in St. Louis when appointed Bishop of Chicago. Archbishop Kenrick consecrated him on July 25, 1854. He resigned the See of Chicago and was made titular Bishop of Dora on June 25, 1858, after which he retired to London and died there on November 13, 1866.

4. DUGGAN, JAMES.

The fourth Bishop of Chicago was born at Maynooth, County Kildare, Ireland, on May 22, 1825, and emigrated to the United States in 1842, taking up his residence in St. Louis. He made his theological studies in that city and was ordained to the priesthood on May 29, 1847. Before his appointment as Coadjutor to St. Louis on January 9, 1857, he was Superior of the St. Louis Theological Seminary; assistant at the Cathedral, and one of the Vicars-General of the Diocese. In March, 1858, he was sent to administer the vacant See of Chicago, and on January 21, 1859, he was appointed to the See. He was removed from active administration on April 14, 1869. He died in St. Louis on March 27, 1899.

7. MUNDELEIN, GEORGE W.

The present Archbishop of Chicago was born in Brooklyn, New York on July 7, 1872, and received his collegiate training at Manhattan College, New York City. His theological studies were made at the Propaganda in Rome, and he was ordained to the priesthood on June 9, 1895. He served as assistant secretary to Bishop McDonnell of Brooklyn, and later was appointed chancellor of the Diocese. He was appointed titular Bishop of Loryna and Auxiliary of Brooklyn on June 30, 1909. He was consecrated on September 21, 1909, by Bishop McDonnell and was transferred to Chicago on December 9, 1915.

The Right Reverend Edward Hoban is the present Auxiliary Bishop of Chicago. A native of that city, he made his classical studies at Saint Ignatius' College and later went to Saint Mary's Seminary in Baltimore for philosophy and theology. He was ordained to the priesthood by Archbishop Quigley on July 11, 1903, and after some time spent in parish work he was sent to Rome for post-graduate study, receiving there a Doctorate in Divinity at the Gregorian University. He was chancellor of the Archdiocese until his appointment as assistant to Archbishop Mundelein, and was consecrated on December 21, 1921, by his Ordinary.

II. Diocese of Alton (1853-1857)

At the time of its erection on July 29, 1853, the diocesan seat was located at Quincy, and the Very Reverend Joseph Melcher was appointed as its first Bishop. He refused the office, however, and the newly-created See was administered by the Bishop of Chicago. Finally, the diocesan seat was removed to Alton, and the See of that name was erected on January 9, 1857, and on April 26, 1858, the Right Reverend Henry D. Juncker was consecrated its first Bishop.

When erected, the Diocese of Alton included the entire southern part of the State of Illinois. The extreme southern part was absconded in 1887 to form the Diocese of Belleville. The Diocese of Alton now comprises that part of Illinois lying south of the northern limits of the Counties of Adams, Brown, Cass, Menard, Sangamon, Macon, Moultrie, Douglas and Edgar, and north of the southern limits of the Counties of Madison, Bond, Fayette, Effingham, Jasper and Crawford; an area of 15,139 square miles.

3. RYAN, JAMES.

The present Bishop of Alton was born in Thurles, County Tipperary, Ireland, on June 17, 1848. His education was received at Saint Thomas' and Joseph's Colleges, Bardstown, and at Preston Park Seminary, Louisville. He was ordained to the priesthood on December 24, 1871, and afterwards spent a few years in Kentucky as a missionary and teacher. When Bishop Spalding was appointed to the See of Peoria, the future Bishop of Alton followed him there. At the time of his own appointment as Bishop, he was rector of Saint Columba's Church in Ottawa, Illinois. Bishop Spalding consecrated him on May 1, 1888.

III. Diocese of Peoria (1877)

Pope Pius IX created the Diocese of Peoria on January 18, 1877, and the Right Reverend John Lancaster Spalding was consecrated as its first Bishop on May 1, 1877.

The Diocese still comprises its original limits of a cross-section of Illinois, bounded on the north by the Counties of Whiteside, Lee, DeKalb, Grundy, and Kankakee, and on the south by Adams, Brown, Cass, Menard, Sangamon, Macon, Moultrie, Douglas and Edgar; comprising the Counties of Bureau, Champaign, Dewitt, Ford, Fulton, Hancock, Henderson, Henry, Iroquoise, Knox, La Salle, Livingston, Logan, Marshall, Mason, McDonough, McClean, Mercer, Peoria, Piatt, Putnam, Rock Island, Schuyler, Stark, Tazewell, Vermilion, Warren and Woodford; an area of 18,554 square miles.

1. SPALDING, JOHN L.

Archbishop Spalding was born at Lebanon, Kentucky, on June 2, 1840, and received his education at Bardstown, Mount Saint Mary's, Emmitsburg; American College at Louvain, and in Rome. He was ordained to the priesthood on December 19, 1863. Upon his return from Europe he was appointed an assistant at the Cathedral in Louisville, and in 1870 he became pastor of Saint Augustine's Church in that city. He was also secretary and chancellor of the Diocese until 1872, when he moved to New York and labored in Saint Michael's parish. While there, in conjunction with the Paulist Fathers, he wrote the life of his uncle, the Most Reverend Martin Spalding, of Baltimore. He was appointed Bishop of Peoria on November 27, 1876, and was consecrated in New York City by Cardinal McCloskey on May 1, 1877. He was stricken with paralysis on January 6, 1905, and resigned the See on September 11, 1908, and was made titular Archbishop of Scitopolis. He died in Peoria on August 25, 1916.

2. DUNN, EDMUND M.

The present Bishop of Peoria was born in Chicago on February 2, 1864, and received his early education in the parochial schools of that city. His collegiate education and seminary training were received at Saint Ignatius, Chicago, Niagara University, and the American College at Louvain. He was ordained to the priesthood on June 24, 1887. Under Archbishop Quigley he acted as chancellor of the Archdiocese and on June 30, 1909, was appointed Bishop of Peoria. He was consecrated by Archbishop Quigley on September 1, 1909.

Right Reverend Peter O'Reilly was born on April 14, 1850, in County Meath, Ireland, and received his seminary training at All Hallows College, Dublin, where he was ordained to the priesthood on June 24, 1877. Coming to the United States he labored in Champaign, Danville and Peoria, Illinois, before his appointment as Auxiliary Bishop of Peoria. He was consecrated titular Bishop of Lebedos on September 21, 1900, by Cardinal Martinelli.

IV. Diocese of Belleville (1887)

Pope Leo XIII, acting on the recommendation of the Fathers of the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore, created the Diocese of Belleville on January 7, 1887, and the Right Reverend John Janssen, D.D., was consecrated as the first Bishop on April 25, 1888.

The Diocese comprises that part of the State of Illinois south of the northern limits of the counties of St. Clair, Clinton, Marion, Clay, Richland and Lawrence; an area of 11,678 square miles.

1. MULDOON, PETER.

Bishop Muldoon was born at Columbia, California, October 10, 1863, and received his philosophical and theological training at Saint Mary's, Baltimore. Bishop Loughlin of Brooklyn ordained him to the priesthood on December 18, 1886. He was assistant at Saint Pius Parish in Chicago from 1887 to November 18, 1888, and then was appointed chancellor of the Archdiocese of Chicago. He was consecrated Auxiliary Bishop of Chicago on July 25, 1901, by Cardinal Martinelli. He was transferred to Rockford on September 22, 1908.

CHAPTER XIII.

THE PROVINCE OF ST. PAUL (1888).

The Province of Saint Paul was established by Leo XIII on May 4, 1888, and the Right Reverend John Ireland, D. D., was appointed its first Archbishop, on May 15, 1888.

When erected, the Province included the States of Minnesota and North and South Dakota, with the Vicariates of Northern Minnesota and Dakota as suffragans. The Province still comprises the territory of the three States with the Dioceses of St. Cloud, Sioux Falls, Jamestown, Fargo and Duluth (all erected in 1889); Lead (1902), Bismarck (1909) and Crookston (1909) as suffragan sees.

I. Diocese of Saint Paul (1850)

Pope Pius IX erected the Diocese of Saint Paul on July 19, 1850, and the Right Reverend Joseph Crétin was consecrated as its first Bishop on January 26, 1851.

Originally, the Diocese embraced the territory now covered by the Province, but at present it comprises twenty-seven Counties of the State of Minnesota: Ramsey, Hennepin, Washington, Chisago, Anoka, Dakota, Scott, Wright, Rice, Le Sueur, Carver, Nicollet, Sibley, McLeod, Meeker, Redwood, Renville, Kandiyohi, Lyon, Lincoln, Yellow Medicine, Lac qui Parle, Chippewa, Swift, Goodhue, Big Stone and Brown; an area of 15,233 square miles.

1. CRÉTIN, JOSEPH.

The first Bishop of St. Paul was born at Montluel in the old Diocese of Belley, France, on December 19, 1799, and made his ecclesiastical studies in the seminary of that diocese. He was ordained to the priesthood in Paris, France, on December 20, 1823, and came to the United States with Bishop Loras of Dubuque in October, 1838. For twelve years he was a zealous laborer in the Diocese of Dubuque and during part of the time he served as Vicar-General. He was chosen Bishop of Saint Paul on July 23, 1850 and Bishop Devie of Belley, France, consecrated him on January 26, 1851. He died in St. Paul on February 22, 1857.

2. GRACE, THOMAS L.

The second Bishop of St. Paul was born in Charleston, South Carolina, on November 16, 1814. He received his early education in his native city and at the age of sixteen he entered the Priory of Saint Rose, Kentucky, and on June 12, 1831, was professed as a member of the Dominican Order. Six years later, his superiors sent him to Rome for further studies at the Minerva. He was ordained to the priesthood on December 21, 1839. Upon his return to the United States in 1844, he was assigned to the mission fields of Kentucky and Tennessee where he labored until his appointment as second Bishop of Saint Paul in the early part of 1859. Archbishop Kenrick of St. Louis consecrated him on July 24, 1859. He resigned the See on July 31, 1884, and was made titular Bishop of Menith, and on September 24, 1889, he was appointed titular Archbishop of Siunia. He died in St. Paul on February 22, 1897.

3. IRELAND, JOHN.

Archbishop Ireland was born at Burnchurch, County Kilkenny, Ireland, on September 11, 1838, and came to the United States with his parents in 1852. Bishop Crétin sent the young seminarian to France to complete his collegiate and seminary course; was ordained to the priesthood in Saint Paul by Bishop Grace on December 21, 1861. Soon after he left for the battlefields of the war, where he acted as chaplain of the Fifth Minnesota Regiment. After the war he was stationed in St. Paul as Rector of the Cathedral and on February 21, 1875, he was appointed titular Bishop of Maronea and Coadjutor to Bishop Grace. He was consecrated in that city on December 21, 1875, by Bishop Grace and upon the resignation of the latter on July 31, 1884, automatically succeeded to the See. A year later, on May 15th, he was made first Archbishop of St. Paul and remained as such until his death on September 25, 1918.

4. DOWLING, AUSTIN.

The present Archbishop of St. Paul was born in New York City on April 6, 1868. He received his collegiate education at Manhattan College and made his seminary course at Saint John's, Brighton, Massachusetts. He was at the Catholic University of America from 1890 to 1892, and was ordained to the priesthood on June 24, 1891. He was pastor of Saint Mary's Church, in Warren, Rhode Island, from 1904 to 1905, and at the time of his appointment as first Bishop of Des Moines on January 31, 1912, he was acting as the rector of the Cathedral of Providence. Bishop Harkins consecrated him on April 25, 1912, and he was promoted to the Archiepiscopal See of St. Paul on February 1, 1919.

II. Diocese of Saint Cloud (1889)

The Diocese of Saint Cloud was established on September 22, 1889, and the Right Reverend Otto Zardetti, D.D., was consecrated as its first Bishop on October 20, 1889.

When established, the Diocese included the territory in Northwestern Minnesota. In 1909, when the See of Crookston was erected, it received its present limits of the Counties of Stearns, Sherburne, Benton, Morrison, Millelacs, Kanabec, Isanti, Pope, Stevens, Travers, Grant, Douglas, Wilkin, Otter Tail, Todd, Wadena, in the State of Minnesota; an area of 12,251 square miles.

I. Diocese of Dubuque (1837)

The Fathers of the Third Provincial Council of Baltimore petitioned the Holy See to erect the Diocese of Dubuque and the request was granted on July 28, 1837. The Right Reverend Mathias Loras was consecrated as its first Bishop on December 10, 1837.

Originally, the Diocese included that part of the Wisconsin Territory which lay between the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers. At present it comprises that part of the State of Iowa north of the counties of Polk, Jasper, Poweshiek, Iowa, Johnson, Cedar and Clinton, and west of the counties of Kossuth, Humboldt, Webster and Boone; an area of 17,404 square miles.

1. LORAS, MATTHIAS.

Bishop Loras was born on August 30, 1792, in Lyons, France, and had as a schoolmate the Curé d'Ars. He was ordained to the priesthood on November 12, 1815, and despite his youth was made Superior of the Seminary at Largentière. When Bishop Portier sought helpers for his diocese in the United States the Reverend Matthias Loras responded to the call and left for Mobile in 1829. When Spring Hill College was opened he was chosen as one of the professors and in 1833 and 1834 acted as President of that institution. Bishop Portier consecrated him first Bishop of Dubuque in Mobile, Alabama, on December 10, 1837. He died in Dubuque on February 20, 1858.

1. MCMULLEN, JOHN.

Bishop McMullen was born at Ballynahinck, County Down, Ireland, on January 8, 1832, and at the age of four he was taken by emigrants to Chicago by way of Canada. After his graduation from Saint Mary's-of-the-Lake, he was sent to the Urban College at Rome to complete his theology and was ordained to the priesthood on June 20, 1858. Upon his return to the United States he was made pastor of Saint Luke's Church in Chicago and later was chosen President of Saint Mary's-of-the-Lake, a position he held four years, after which he was appointed professor in the Diocesan Seminary. In October, 1870, he was named rector of the Cathedral and seven years later became Vicar-General. After the death of Bishop Foley, he acted as Administrator of the Diocese, and in 1881, he was appointed first Bishop of Davenport. Archbishop Feehan consecrated him on July 25, 1881. He died in Davenport on July 4, 1883.

He was pastor of Saint Mary's Cathedral in Cheyenne, Wyoming, when appointed first Bishop of Grand Island, and was consecrated by Archbishop James J. Keane on April 16, 1913.

CONCLUSION

Twenty priests constituted the assembly of the first Synod of the Church in the New Republic presided over by Bishop Carroll on November 7, 1791. When the Province of Baltimore was erected on April 8, 1808, Archbishop Carroll and the four suffragan bishops-elect comprised the hierarchical organization of the nascent Church in this country.

With the growth and expansion of the Church came a corresponding development of its hierarchy, so that in 1829 at the First Provincial Council of Baltimore the Catholic Hierarchy of the United States consisted of one archbishop and nine bishops. At the First Plenary Council of Baltimore in 1852, six archbishops and twenty-seven bishops comprised the organization, to which number one archbishop and eleven bishops were added before the convocation of the Second Plenary Council of Baltimore. From 1866 to 1895 the hierarchy doubled its number over the period between 1790 to 1866. At present the status of the Catholic Hierarchy of the United States is as follows: Cardinals (2); Archbishops (12); Titular Archbishops (2); Bishops in active administration (82); Bishops resigned (3); Auxiliary-Bishops (9) and Vicars-Apostolic (2). This personnel exercises ecclesiastical jurisdiction over fourteen provinces, eighty-six dioceses and two vicariates-apostolic.

From 1790 to 1922 seven of the members of the Catholic Hierarchy in the United States have been created Cardinals; fifty-nine have been chosen Archbishops; two hundred and fifty-five have held the office of Bishop; eighteen have served as Coadjutors and Auxiliary Bishops and six as Vicars-Apostolic.¹

A press dispatch of May 23, 1922, chronicles the appointment of the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Bernard Mahoney, D.D., as the successor of Bishop O'Gorman in the See of Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

VITA

Rev. John Hugh O'Donnell, C.S.C., was born in Grand Rapids, Michigan, on June 2, 1895. He received his primary education at St. Andrew's parochial school of that city and was later graduated from the Catholic Central High School of Grand Rapids in June, 1912. The following September he began his studies at the University of Notre Dame, Notre Dame, Indiana, from which institution he received the degree of Bachelor of Letters (Litt. B.) in June, 1916. He then entered the Congregation of Holy Cross, and after the usual period of novitiate began his theological studies at Holy Cross College, Washington, D. C. He was ordained to the priesthood on December 28, 1921, by the Rt. Rev. Edward D. Kelly, D.D., Bishop of Grand Rapids.

In September 1919 he matriculated at the Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C., to pursue graduate work in American Church History. The major course of study was done under the direction of the Rev. Dr. Peter Guilday. The courses in the two subordinate subjects, American Political History and Industrial Ethics, were completed under the supervision of Dr. Charles H. McCarthy and Rev. Dr. John A. Ryan, respectively. The author here wishes to acknowledge his sincere gratitude to these professors as well as to the Rev. Louis Kelly, C.S.C., for their kindness and hearty cooperation during his period of graduate study.
